TASK : 1

India is home to many religions. We come to know more about these religions from their holy books. We call these books scriptures. Scriptures are very, very old. They have been written in beautiful, old languages by wise people.

No matter which religion we belong to, we can read the holy books of other faiths too. This will teach us that all scriptures are written for the good of people. They teach us to take care of the poor, to love and forgive each other. They also tell us why we must look after the earth and all living things. In India we are very lucky to have the holy books of different faiths. Let us read a little more about the holy books and see what we can learn from them.

I. Choose the correct answers:

1. In India, we have holy books of _____ (one faith/ different faiths).
2. We _____ (can read/ cannot read) the holy books of other religions.
3. Knowing about other religions _____ (helps us/ does not help us) understand our friends of other religions better.
